Manaras-Opera Introduces New Website

January 9, 2012 – Manaras-Opera is delighted to announce the launch of their re-designed website. The site features expanded content, improved navigation tools, a new request for quote/information email form and up-to-date technical information.

Our goal is to provide our visitors with accurate technical information regarding our services and products. While offering rich content already, we continually strive to add more information to update you with the latest happenings and product improvements made at Manaras-Opera.

In addition to the site's informative content, the design and interface are developed in a way so as to provide an excellent user experience. Sharing with colleagues and friends is easy and return visits are encouraged.

Additional content will continue to be added to the new Manaras-Opera website, facilitating the search for product information for our customers. The French site is getting an overhaul as well and should be up and running in the coming months.
